

Boy Injured In

Auto Accident

David Willard, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Willard of 1302 Hopkins avenue narrowly escaped serious injury in an automobile accident Monday. The boy driving a cut-down collided with a car driven by L. C. Brown, manager of the Pacific Telephone Company in this district. The accident occurred on Cordillera road about two miles west of this city.

Both cars were quite badly damaged in the crash. Young Willard suffered a painful injury to one leg. The occupants of the other car were not injured.

Supreme Court

Holds Belmont

Incorporation

To Be Regular

Decision Reverses the

One Rendered By

Judge Hudner

Belmont's status as an incorporated city was apparently settled on Tuesday when the state supreme court refused to grant a rehearing to a decision of the district court of appeals, which recently ruled that the incorporation of the city was legal and regular. The Supreme court decision and that of the court of appeals reverses that given in the Superior court of this county by the late Judge John L. Hudner, who held that the incorporation of the town was irregular.

Belmont was incorporated as a city of the sixth class in 1926. Officers were elected and appointive officers named. For a time the city functioned as a regularly incorporated city. A suit for disincorporation was filed, however, by John W. Burdette, who claimed that the incorporation of the city was not legal. The suit was heard here before Judge Hudner.

By the decision of Judge Hudner the incorporation was declared irregular. The officers of Belmont, however, appealed the decision, and a short time ago the court of appeals handed down a decision reversing that of the local Superior court. Burdette appealed the case again, but the Supreme court refused to reopen the matter, thus confirming the decision of the court of appeals.

Under this decision the officers elected in 1926 may resume their functions, and claims which were legally passed at that time may now be paid as soon as the city may collect money to pay them.

The officers of the city are: Thomas Pennington, Dr. H. C. Warner, C. J. Mesner, Chris Jordan and Louis Vannier, trustees; David Callen, city clerk; treasurer and police judge, S. G. Cook; chief of police, C. E. Caldwell; city attorney, Roger Sherman.

Mexico's Fight For

Anti-War Worker

Speaking on international relations, Dr. Lincoln Wirt, western secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, addressed members of the Redwood City Kiwanis Club Wednesday. Dr. Wirt spoke especially upon the relations which exist between this country and Canada, and with Mexico. His talk had chiefly to do with the latter country.

Dr. Wirt spoke in the highest praise of the policy of the Mexican government in establishing rural schools throughout the country districts of Mexico, and told how the teachers which have been sent to these outlying districts must not only teach school, but must instill ideas of sanitation, hygiene and right living into the minds of a portion of the people which has for centuries been exploited and down-trodden.

The chairman of the meeting was Clarence Argo, principal of the Sequoia Union High School.

LOCAL JEWELER SUEDE

The Gruen Watch Company on Tuesday filed suit in Superior court against Simpson Reinhard, Redwood City jeweler, for $1456.01, alleged to be due for goods sold to the Redwood City man. The watch company alleges the amount has been owing from December 1, 1928, and that no part of it has been paid. Cook & Whitehead of San Mateo are attorneys for the plaintiff.

RAILROADS BATTLING

FOR FRANCHISE IN

NORTH CALIFORNIA

Connection With Proposed Western Pacific

Line On Peninsula Makes Contest

One of Great Interest To

People Here

People of the peninsula are watching with interest the battle now being waged before Examiner Mahaffie of the Inter-State Commerce Commission by the Western Pacific and Great Northern railroads against the Southern Pacific. The Great Northern connection which is being sought will form an important link, if allowed to be built, in the system which is also planning a line along the peninsula and across the bay at this point.

The two proposals, the linking of the Great Northern and Western Pacific lines in the northern part of the state and the construction of an extension of the Western Pacific's transcontinental line across the bay at Redwood City and along the eastern shore of the peninsula into San Francisco mark the greatest proposals in rail transportation development in recent years. The hearing on the latter proposal was recently reopened; that on the former is expected to be completed this week in San Francisco.

The total estimated cost of the proposed "link" is $13,158,967, of which $9,802,577 would be expended by the Western Pacific (constructing 112 miles of the line) and $3,356,320 by the Great Northern (constructing 88 miles). The cost of a proposed joint terminal at Elsie, estimated at $526,000 would be divided by the two systems.

No gifts, grants or donations have been promised in connection with the proposed linking up of the two systems. The Great Northern would finance its construction entirely by current funds; while the Western Pacific would issue and sell debenture bonds or notes in the sum of $5,000,000 and supply the balance from cash assets and the issuance of first mortgage bonds.

Both roads plan to start construction as soon as permission is granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission—if granted—the Great Northern expecting to have its 88 miles completed by the end of 1930 and the Western Pacific by the early spring of 1932.

Petitions Favor Line

Ten states, two railroads, and upward of 65 districts, municipal and civic organizations of recognized standing have filed "intervening" petitions with the I. C. C., favoring the granting of the joint petitions. A far less formidable group has filed on behalf of the Southern Pacific Co.

Attorneys for the proponents, led by Judge Warren Olney, Jr., and F. G. Dorety, representing the Western Pacific and Great Northern, respectively, and for the opponents, headed by E. J. Foulds, made their opening arguments before Chief Examiner Mahaffie Wednesday. Those present included President Ralph Budd of the Great Northern, President Harry Adams of the Western Pacific, President Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific; T. M. Schumacher, chairman of the Western Pacific board; Arthur Curtis James, heavy stockholder in all three roads, and many other notables.

The petition of the two other lines is being opposed by the Southern Pacific apparently on the ground that the construction of the link would create a potential loss of business in what they consider an adequately served territory.

Proponents of the petition make the following statement, bearing upon possible financial damage to the Southern Pacific:

"It is estimated that diversion from other lines will be entirely offset before the end of the fifth year of operation by new and additional traffic which will accrue to the new existing lines through the natural growth of the territory, and by reason of the introduction of railroad competition.

The proceeds of the ball will go to the widows and orphans' fund of the association.

Redwood Man Hurt

In Auto Accident

William L. Libby, Redwood City sign painter, was slightly injured Wednesday evening when his car and one belonging to Carl F. Unruh, 1714 Truxton avenue, Bakersfield, collided at the intersection of Fuller and Allerton streets. Both cars were overturned by the force of the collision. The accident was investigated by Officers Thorpe and Snider of the Redwood City police.

The driver of the Bakersfield car had left the scene of the wreck before the officers arrived. Both cars were badly damaged.

Indian Life

Plans Discussed For

Annual Christmas

Party

Life among the aborigines of Canada was graphically portrayed for members of the Redwood City Exchange Club Tuesday by Frank Boynton, who has spent many years among the Indians of the Northwest. A great many interesting anecdotes of Indian life were told by the speaker.

The chairman of the meeting was Carroll D. Hall, editor of the Tribune.

Edmund Scott told of plans for the annual Christmas party which will take place next month at the Sequoia Theatre. The Exchange Club Children's Christmas Party has become an affair of community importance, and is looked forward to each year by the children. The party this year is being arranged by John J. Garland.

A new member was taken into the club Tuesday. Dr. Ralph Howe, who recently opened offices in the Sequoia building was welcomed as a new member. The welcoming speech was made by James Eva.

Cook Admits Theft

Of Money From Box

In Office Desk

Theft of $200 from the Oak Tree Inn in San Mateo, where he was employed as a part time cook, will result in Joseph M. Montminy spending the next 90 days in the county jail. Montminy began his term on Wednesday following imposition of sentence by Judge Geo. Kertell.

The theft was made this week while Montminy was at work at the restaurant. He broke into the desk of the manager and then into a metal cash box. From the latter he took $132 in cash and checks, totaling $70. With the money he purchased travelers cheques of the American Express Company at that company's San Francisco office.

The purchase of the cheques led to Montminy's arrest, when it was found that the papers in which the coin of various denominations had been wrapped, were old menus from the Oak Tree Inn at San Mateo. Montminy was traced to a Howard street lodging house and arrested, and told how he had left the door open to give the impression that the thief had gone in from the outside.

Y. M. I. Team

To Play Team

From Oakland

The Redwood Y. M. I. will take on the Oakland American Legion football team on Genoa field next Sunday afternoon. The Oakland aggregation is considered one of the strongest in northern California and Dan Foley and his men are expecting a stiff battle.

The Y. M. I. will have practically the same line-up as last Sunday, when the locals defeated the strong U. S. S. Mississippi eleven by a score of 7 to 0. Dan Foley scored the lone touchdown on a sweeping end run and Joe Fens added the extra point with a place kick.

Farmides, former Lick school star, who played such a bang-up game for Redwood against the sailors last Sunday, will again hold down the left tackle job, and Fritz Dana, who was shifted from end to fullback with successful results, will be in that position again.

The Y. M. I. has had a very successful season so far. In nine games played, they have won 7, tied one and lost one, the sole defeat being at the hands of the Santa Rosa Legion.

Sunday afternoon's game will start at 2:30.

Sequoia Girls

Plan Dance On

November 16th

By VERA V. WALLER

For the second time the Sequoia Girls' Society will have a barn dance. The reason for repeating the same type of dance was due to the success of last year's dance on which more profits were made than at any other dance at Sequoia.

Plans for this year's dance to be given November 16 are being taken care of by committees from the clubs. Each club has charge of one particular phase of the work: Club I, programs; Club II, refreshments; Club III, publicity; Club IV, cleanup; Club V, decorations. The refreshments are to be lolly-pops, cider and apples. Music will be furnished by Bob Murphy's five-piece Stanford Orchestra.

Miss Ann Burns, dean of girls, stated: "Because the S. G. S. Barn Dance was such a success last year, the members want to try and repeat it."

Burning Church

Methodist Structure

Periled By

Fire

Fire originating around a gas heater in the wall of the First Methodist church of this city on Wednesday damaged the church building quite severely before the flames could be extinguished by the fire department. The heater was built into the walls of the building, and the wall timbers were blazing before the fire was noticed. An alarm was immediately sent to the department which responded at once.

The damage was confined to one interior wall of the church. The loss was covered by insurance.

A grass fire at the corner of Roosevelt avenue and Virginia street was extinguished by the fire department yesterday shortly before noon. The fire is believed to have been started by some boys who were seen playing in the field which was burned. Yacht Harbor For

San Mateo Sought

Plans for a yacht harbor are being outlined by a committee appointed by the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce. A yacht harbor for San Mateo is one of the goals set by the board of directors of the chamber of commerce of that city, and in order to gain definite information on the possibilities of San Mateo's bay frontage, a committee consisting of President Fred Beer, A. W. Deuel, Oscar F. Weisberger, and Lloyd Berendsen, was appointed to make a study of the situation and submit plans for the project to the directors.

The popularity of motorboating and yachting on the bay is increasing continually, and the possession of a suitable frontage will be valuable asset to any city on the peninsula. Redwood City and Palo Alto are both working on boat harbors at the present time.

Two penny drives will be held by the Junior Red Cross Thursday and Friday. Representatives have already been sent to the grammar schools to distribute Red Cross buttons and posters.

Because of Teachers' Institute and the usual arrangement of holidays, Sequoia students will have three weeks Christmas vacation this year instead of two.

Every year the towns people are presented with a Christmas program. The program this year will consist of a play by the dramatic class, music by the choral classes, and the orchestra will accompany.

It was easily seen Friday that the Junior girls won the thickest selling contest for "White Collars," the junior play, which was presented Saturday evening.

Four new nights have been purchased for the stage of the auditorium. The first time these nights were used was at the Junior play Saturday night. There are now six different kinds of lights that can be used for the stage.

Slight Change In

Weevil Quarantine

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 14.—(UP)—Rumors that portions of nine Central California counties, leaders in vegetable productions, have been placed under further vegetable quarantine were denied today by the state department of agriculture.

"A quarantine to stamp out vegetable weevil in these counties was promulgated two years ago," said A. C. Fleury, state quarantine expert.

"Last week a slight change, affecting only one district, Santa Cruz county, was made, but the quarantine was neither lifted or extended. It affects sections of Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, Napa, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz and Solano counties.

"Growers may precede under the same arrangement they have done for the past two years, without fear of running afoul of the quarantine law."

State Plans

Campaign on

"Road Hogs"

"Exterminate the road hog!" This order, effective November 20, was issued yesterday by Eugene W. Biscailuz, superintendent of the California Highway Patrol, who is co-operating in the twelve-month program of traffic education and enforcement sponsored by the California Committee on Public Safety.

"Keep to the right," will be the police warning to this pest of all motorists until November 20 under Biscailuz's order. Thereafter citations will be issued to all motorists failing to comply with the law.

The "road hog," according to the California Committee on Public Safety, is causing accidents as well as nullifying the maximum use of broad highways upon the state is spending millions of dollars. The California State Automobile Association is authority for the statement that there have been few, if any, prosecutions and convictions of drivers for failure to observe Section 29 of the Vehicle Act.

This section makes it compulsory for operators to drive at all times close to the right hand side of the highway or street, notwithstanding what speed they may be traveling—slow or fast. If such a practice was followed, says the Committee, few cars would be forced to the left side of the road in passing and many accidents would be avoided.

During the month of October the Committee with the co-operation of Governor C. C. Young, Superintendent Biscailuz, mayors and chiefs of police of sixty-five cities stressed headlight violations and thousands of citations were issued.

HEALTHFUL LIVING

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure"—literally this ancient proverb is true today. The average family spends for CURES about sixteen times what it should spend for PREVENTION.

Periodical Physical Examination is gaining approval rapidly so far as the schools and children are concerned.

BUT physical examination is the EXCEPTION rather than the rule, for ADULTS.

Periodical medical examination discloses defects or conditions needing attention in one out of every four persons, and at least HALF of these are readily preventable!

Our chances of life can be increased 25 per cent and more by yearly examinations and by following the advice of a competent physician.

REMEMBER, our doctor would sooner help us KEEP WELL than try to cure us when we are sick.

If we treated our bodies as well as our cars, the health, prosperity and happiness of our community would be pyramided.

We must remember cities made up of healthy citizens are PROSPEROUS CITIES. Our community wealth is dependent on personal health.

LET'S ALL LIVE HEALTHY, HAPPY LIVES!

Practically every business and professional man is actively engaged in supplying a commodity or service which contributes directly or indirectly to your health, and as such he is working to keep you and every other citizen healthy and happy in

The Red Cross Has Become A New Symbol

THE spirit of mutual collaboration which today characterizes the Red Cross was never more happily defined than by President Hoover, after his experiences in the Mississippi Valley flood areas in 1927. It is peculiarly inspiring at this time of preparation for the annual Roll Call to reprint his statement of the new symbolism which he found in the Red Cross in relief action: "Even so late as eight (now eleven) years ago we regarded the Red Cross as the signal of mercy and protection from the disaster of war; but today it has become a new symbol the banner of mercy and of skillful protection from disasters of every kind. Nor is it a foreigner in your midst, for you are a part of it with all the rest of the nations. It has become our great mutual assurance against disaster."

"But it is even greater than this—it represents the spirit of our people. . . . Its service is not the mandate of government; it is the far higher mandate of human conscience. . . . The nation gains in the quickening of its spiritual impulses. It is the reprimand to selfishness."

"Such great organized generosity as our nation has expressed through the Red Cross is the hopeful thing in our world, for the true hope of progress is the progress in spiritual things."

Americans?

A prominent American recently returned to this country from a trip to Europe. He writes that on landing in New York he noticed a number of "American citizens" presenting their passports to the custom officer at the dock. When questioned in English by the officer it was necessary for this group of "citizens," consisting of Russians, Japanese, Italians, Czech-Slovakians, and others of foreign origin, to call an interpreter. It was the observer's thought that the majority of these were probably born in the United States of alien parents, but had lived in foreign colonies and read foreign papers printed in foreign languages. This conclusion is highly probable.

There are many instances of families coming to this country who do not believe in the old slogan: "When in Rome do as the Romans do." Though in America, they have no desire to become Americans. They form their own exclusive groups, speak their native languages, and jealously cling to their old customs, ideals and allegiances. They rear their children, guarding them carefully lest they drift away from thoughts of the old country and become Americanized. Though in some instances individuals of this class may take out citizenship papers, becoming nominal citizens, they remain in spirit and thought aliens.

It is the expressed belief of the writer mentioned above that such peoples are "a menace to the nation's future welfare and integrity." Any other opinion is hardly possible to one who believes that a country's welfare is dependent upon the unity of its citizens.

Let Him Learn A Trade

A veteran desk lieutenant of police in a large city was talking with a group of newspaper men early one morning, after "business" had slackened a bit. "Do you know," he mused, "after all the years I have spent as a cop, I don't believe I have seen a dozen normal young men who knew some trade thoroughly ever even accused of crime. It's the young drifters, the hangers-around the corners, the 'drug store cowboys,' as they call 'em, that get into trouble. The steady young feller who plugs through an apprenticeship and learns his trade is hardly ever a stick-up man, thug, or anything of that kind."

And the old lieutenant has the right of it. There is a steady discipline about the serving of an apprenticeship in a trade that makes for character. The craftsman has a pride, a self-reliance, a confidence in himself that is a sobering influence. The drifter, the boy who works here a while, there a couple of months, who slides around, loafing a good deal, gambling a good deal, hanging around the back room of pool parlors and speakeasies, getting pretty near to the crime-line many times and feeling that it is clever to "put one over" on the police, he is the potential gunman, the candidate for high dishonor as burglar, stick-up man, or other unlovely callings.

The man with the trade is generally better off financially than the man in what are called the "white collar jobs," too.

Open the Doors

EVERY year a large number of persons are fatally poisoned by carbon monoxide given off by the exhaust gases of automobiles, and many others escape the same fate only because they are discovered (often in an unconscious condition), removed from the dangerous atmosphere, and treated promptly and intelligently. Although these cases occur throughout the year, they are more numerous during the winter months because of the unnecessary and extremely dangerous (but unfortunately quite common practice of "warming up" automobile engines in small garages, with all doors and windows closed.

There is no difficulty in preventing these fatalities—all that is necessary is to open the doors and windows of the garage before starting the engine, and leaving them open. The fresh air entering from outside will prevent a dangerous concentration of carbon monoxide.

Occasionally, also, persons are overcome by carbon monoxide while riding in closed automobiles, and while sitting in stationary closed cars with the engines running. In such cases the gas usually comes from a defective car heater, or a leaky exhaust pipe. The remedy is simple—always have one or more of the car windows open. Remember—it is better to be alive and chilly, than dead and cold.

Lock Your Car

AUTOMOBILE insurance companies report that during the past year no less than 116,000 automobiles with a total value of $81,200,000 were stolen in the United States.

Some gratification is found in the report that between eighty and ninety per cent were ultimately recovered, but it is partially offset by the fact that most of them came back battered and damaged.

Failure of owners to lock their cars offers an invitation which the average thief is usually not slow to accept. Insurance companies therefore, stress the importance of locking.

A locked car might not thwart a professional thief, but it would stop the casual "borrower," and conscientious individual who goes joy riding and later abandons the "borrowed," car in some out-of-the-way place. Avoid anxiety by locking the car.

If you are a fisherman, you have heard and told many a fish story and the biggest fish is usually the one that got away. If you are an auction player, you have heard and told many a story about the play and bidding of unusual hands. Here is a new one, where the "biggest fish" was actually caught.

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed. A and Y passed and B bid one diamond. Z bid one spade. A bid one no trump and Y bid two spades. B now bid three hearts. Z and A passed and Y bid four hearts. A and B passed and Y bid five hearts. Z opened the ace of clubs and followed with the eight of clubs which B won with the king. He now led the seven of hearts and forced Y in the lead with the ace of hearts. Y now led the queen of clubs and followed with the four of spades. B trumped with the queen of hearts and followed with the eight of hearts, winning the trick in A's hand with the jack. He now led the queen of diamonds from A's hand and whether or not Y covers, A B must win the balance of the tricks.

This is a normal hand, well bid and well played with one exception and that is Z's failure to bid as dealer. This failure to bid caused him and his partner to lose the rubber. With a hand of this type, containing two quick tricks, one of which is at the head of a five-card suit, Z as dealer has a justifiable bid.

Just suppose, for example, Z bids one spade. A's hand is pretty weak in everything but spades so the chances are that A would pass. He is well satisfied with the spade bid and his heart suit is hardly strong enough to justify a bid. If A passes, Y's proper bid is three spades. B will then bid four diamonds and all will pass. With the club opening as before, A B can make four diamonds and so will fail to score game.

Don't pass a justifiable original bid if your hand contains the necessary values. The foregoing hand is a good example of what happens to the timid bidder. It is a well known rule of the game that if you are going to be an overbidder or an under-bidder, the former is the lesser of the two evils.

Camels are for knowing smokers!

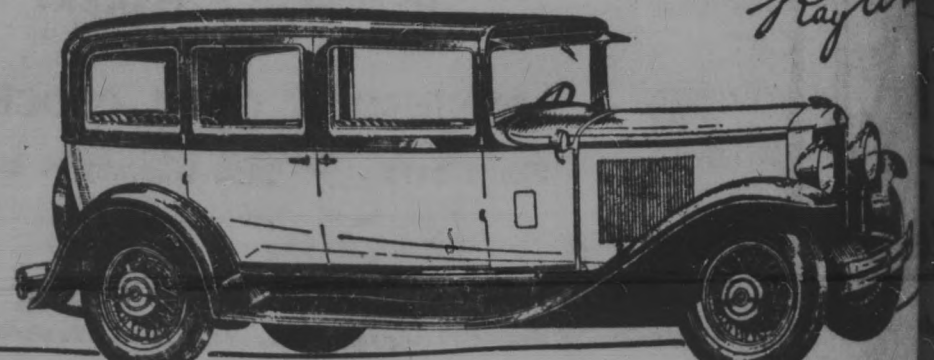

New smokers are not always in a position to have a real cigarette. But when they acquaint themselves with Camels develop that sense of discrimination that leads to real smoking. Camels are made so carefully and of so good a blend of cigarette tobaccos that even those with inexperienced taste quickly recognize their superiority. They are for those who appreciate the taste of choice tobaccos, the fragrance of a blend and the soothing mellowness of a really satisfying cigarette.

Horses Had Right of Way On 1905 Road

Old Statute Shows Many Changes in 24 Years

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
SACRAMENTO, Nov. 14.—(UP)—How'd you like it, Mr. Automobile Owner, if—

The speed limit on state highways was 20 miles an hour? License plates cost only $2, and annual renewals, $1?

Horses had the right-of-way, and a horseback rider or driver of a team "of restive animals" could bring you to a halt merely by raising his hand? Or even compel you to kill your engine?

It would be pretty tough, wouldn't it? Yet that was the law of California in 1906, when the state's first motor vehicle act was adopted. A lot of funny things in that law were brought to light this week when it was resurrected from the state archives.

In those days, the Secretary of State was official registrar of automobiles, and he listed the owners in a small black book in his office, in contrast to the elaborate filing system now in use.

"No person shall operate an automobile on a public highway at a speed greater than is reasonable or proper, having regard to the traffic and use of the highway, or so as to endanger the life or limb of any person," declared the 1905 statutes. Such speed, the law further explained, was 10 miles an hour inside incorporated cities and counties, 15 miles in residence districts, and 20 miles an hour on state highways.

Furthermore, the law recognized that skittish horses would sometimes rear or bolt the traces if an automobile hove into sight. Therefore, the driver of a car was required, in case the rider or driver gave the hand signal, to "bring such motor vehicle immediately to a stop." If the auto was traveling in an opposite direction, its driver was required to "remain stationary so long as may be reasonable to allow such horse or animal to pass."

Today a new state law provides against unnecessary tooting of an automobile horn. In 1905 the law didn't care how much you tooted it, just so you had a horn on the car. Every car, it is said, "must be provided with a suitable bell, horn or other signal." Two lamps with white lights in front were also needed. Glaring lights didn't worry officers then, for most of the lamps were of the kerosene or carbide variety.

Out-of-the-state cars went virtually unregulated for the first few years. No restriction was placed upon them except that the owner comply with the law regulating automobiles in his own state. California's first motor vehicle act carried an appropriation of $20,000 to put it into effect.

WAR VETERANS JOIN IN ARMISTICE DAY FETES

A large number of members of Allen H. Nichols Post Veterans of Foreign Wars from this city and Palo Alto went to Watsonville, Santa Cruz and Boulder Creek Monday to take part in Armistice Day festivities.

At Watsonville the local men took part in the big parade which was sponsored by the V. F. W. post of that city. Later in the day the party went to Santa Cruz to participate in the festivities at that city. After the parade at Santa Cruz, an excursion was made to Boulder Creek, where the Santa Cruz post had prepared a big picnic dinner.

 Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson and family who have been motoring for the past two months in northern California, returned to their home in San Francisco last night.
 Smith was James Peace who nearly reached his hundredth year under the beneficent skies of San Mateo county. Peace at that time was a young man, and he came shortly after 1814 and that he came on one of the Pacific Fur Company's ships. It is known that he was a native of one of our eastern states. It is known, too, that he built him a shake house and lived here for many years, marrying a Spanish girl, and that his eldest child was born here. The second American settler after of the hill he watched a search party from the ship in its attempt to apprehend him. Here he was discovered by a Spanish woman, and although he spoke no Spanish nor is believed that he came shortly after 1814 and that he came on one of the Pacific Fur Company's ships. It is known that he was a native of one of our eastern states. It is known, too, that he built him a shake house and lived here for many years, marrying a Spanish girl, and that his eldest child was born here. The second American settler after told him of Smith who had built a cabin in the redwoods about thirty miles to the south. So, trading some cloth which he had brought ashore for a Mexican pony, he started out to find this other man of his race, young sailor who, having had trouble with the captain and mate of his ship, took advantage of the opportunity when his ship anchored under the lee of Telegraph Hill, slipped overboard in the night and swam ashore with what few belongings he had.
 Hidden in the brush on the side did she speak any English, he, by means of signs made her understand that he did not want to be discovered by the party from the ship. Under cover of the night she took him to her house. Now it happened that in this household were relatives of William Smith's wife and they The directions given were very indefinite and Peace wandered for four days through the mountains and almost inaccessible canyons making a zig-zag journey back and forth between the ocean and the bay before he found Smith's camp. The principal edifice was Smith's residence, a shake shanty which stood near where Mr. Coppinger afterwards built his adobe house. Jimmy Peace took up his abode with Smith and worked a year with him; then he put up a shake house of his own near that of Smith. When Peace first came to the redwoods there was no other Anglo-Saxon save Smith in the whole of what is now San Mateo county.

City Council Meets Tuesday

The city council met Tuesday evening with a full membership. After reading the reports of the chief of police and the treasurer, Commissioner Walker exhibited the new street signs which are to be put up at once under the supervision of the city engineer. The signs are neat and attractive and are to be put up on poles. There are to be 215 signs and 110 poles to cost $400 each, complete, including installation. The council appropriated the sum of $500 to do the work. The bid presented for the signs was 85 cents each and the poles 65 cents each.

The clerk was instructed to write the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. informing it of the condition of the crossings at Glenwood and Encinal avenues and to improve same at once.

The clerk was also directed to notify the P. O. & E. Company to cut branches from certain trees in the city through which their wires are stretched.

City Engineer George Kneese was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for the improvement of Florence street and Alice Lane. This action was taken pursuant to a petition presented and properly signed by property owners on those streets.

City Attorney Whitworth presented a temporary zoning ordinance and after much discussion on the subject the ordinance was finally referred to the planning commission for final approval.

Councilman Dale made a motion that hereafter all appointed city officers desist from interfering or taking part in city elections. The motion was lost, Dale and Weeden voting for the motion.

Mr. Dearborn, residing in Stanford Park, near the Fremont school, was given permission to alter his store. He is to erect a new front to the building and otherwise improve its appearance.

The bill for the new siren on the police department's car was allowed and ordered paid. At a former meeting the paying of the claim brought forth much heated discussion. The claim amounted $13.50.

The chief of police was instructed to confer with Mr. Doughty, owner of property on Santa Cruz avenue to have him remove certain overhanging branches of trees on his property and which branches hang over on the sidewalk.

The clerk asked for a stove in her department. The mayor took it upon himself to see the landlord and arrange to have proper heating facilities installed for the comfort of the clerk.

The claim of Treasurer Ryan for $38 was ordered paid. Some discussion arose as to when his salary should begin. It was agreed that this should be from the time of the appointment in October. His salary has been fixed at $30 a month.

Considerable discussion was had regarding the opening of certain streets in Stanford Park. It was brought out in debate that the cost of this work would be between $15,000 and $20,000. The City Engineer said that the money could be raised by forming an assessment district. The City Attorney thought that some of the money might be taken from the general fund of the city. The matter was finally referred to the city planning commission.

Councilman Walker was authorized to say at a meeting of the highway widening committee to be held tomorrow that the people of Menlo Park and the council were in favor of the project of widening the state highway through the city one hundred feet.

The claim of J. B. Fella, the poundmaster, was referred to the mayor for correction.

The council then adjourned to the next regular meeting.

Ground Breaking Service For Presbyterian Church

The trustees of the Presbyterian church have completed the plans for the new Sunday School and Social unit and the building operations will begin next week. A fund of $8,000 has been subscribed locally for the project. It is expected that this sum will be supplemented from a building fund of the Presbyterian and the gifts of other friends in the community. The building and equipment will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. This will provide ample quarters for a growing Sunday School and will provide much needed quarters for suppers, socials and entertainments.

The ground breaking service will be held on the church lawn next Sunday morning at eleven o'clock. The orchestra of the Sunday school will lead the music. The children of the Sunday school will have a prominent part in the ceremony as they will be the first to benefit from the new building. A representative from the general board of Christian Education will be present to assist. All friends who can attend will be welcome to assist in the celebration.

Rev. Bone will deliver a short address, consecrating the ground to the ennobling of youth, the moral uplift of the community, the promotion of community welfare and a broad charity for all.

The Ladies' Auxiliary and the Missionary Society will meet in joint session on next Thursday, November 21, at the home of Mrs. Gardner.

Friends Attend Tinney Funeral

The funeral obsequies in St. Thomas Catholic Church of George W. Tinney, the pioneer undertaker, who died suddenly last Saturday, was largely attended by sorrowing friends. The edifice was crowded to the door when Father Carroll ascended the altar to celebrate a requiem high mass. A number of priests were in the sanctuary to lend their presence to the impressive ceremony. At the conclusion of the service Father Carroll delivered a beautiful eulogy to the memory of the deceased. He told of the pure life of the deceased, his Christian fortitude, kindness and gentleness in dealing with bereaved families in the pursuit of his professional duties. The priest glowingly dwelt upon his career as a citizen, a father and at husband, pointing with eloquence to the family he raised that was an ornament to the community in which the deceased had resided so long. The eloquent eulogy was the finest ever delivered in that church.

"Lead Kindly Light" was sweetly and beautifully rendered by Thomas Glenn, the talented bass of Menlo Park. A select choir sang the mass. The bank of flowers demonstrated the popularity of the deceased. A large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place at Holy Cross cemetery, Colma. The costly casket was placed away in the mausoleum there. George W. Tinney was one of the best known and best beloved men on the peninsula. His sudden death is mourned by hundreds.

Aviator Studying Volcanoes

Washington.—The use of an airplane to permit a scientific observer to look down the "sore throats" of active volcanoes, is one of the latest developments of aviation.

On the island of Hawaii, where the eruptions are feared, three navy seaplanes have been used for volcano inspection trips. Aboard one plane was the veteran volcano observer, Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar.

No monarch or President receives more careful attention than that given by Doctor Jaggar to the volcanoes of the Hawaiian Islands. While his fame rests largely on his practice in these American possessions, Doctor Jaggar is subject to call as consultant in the Aleutian Islands, Japan and other volcano centers.

His house on the tip of Kilauea gives the scientist the right to be considered a "bedside volcano observer" in practically constant attendance on his most chronic case. His instruments, especially his seismographs, have their fingers on the pulse of the volcanoes at all times.

Aged Convict "Still in Ring"

San Francisco.—While most of the elderly prisoners at San Quentin prison avail themselves of the privilege of taking life easy in the "old man's ward," the oldest inmate of them all, nearly eighty, works eight hours a day and sleeps like the majority of the convicts in the large cell blocks.

Received at the prison in April on a charge of passing fictitious checks in Yolo county, F. B. Graham was offered a bed with the other convicts in the quarters which used to house the women prisoners. Here 35 weary old timers are allowed to spend their remaining days in peace and quiet, listening to the radio, smoking and playing dominoes.

"Not for me, I'm not done by a long shot yet," the gray-haired arrival announced and requested of John H. Carpenter, captain of the yard, that he be allowed to do work like the rest. He was permitted to choose which of the prison industries he would engage in and selected the furniture factory. For months he has labored industriously turning the rudiments of the trade, and he is to be allowed to design and make his own pieces. The seventy-nine-year-old clerk has no previous prison record known to San Quentin authorities.

CLUBBED TO DEATH

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

The minister was not complaining exactly; he was simply making a statement of fact.

He had been out on his parishioners as a faithful pastor should, and he had found no one at home. Father and mother and children were all out attending to their social duties. Nor had he confined his calls to the village. Out in the country as well the house doors were closed and the windows down, and no one came when he knocked at the door. Hard roads and the automobile had made it easy for the country dwellers to wander afar. There was a time when country life isolated women especially, and during the winter or the busy season in the spring they might not get outside the yard for weeks. Not so now.

We all have our clubs and our societies, and we are slaves to their demands. There is Mason, for instance. He is a professional man with marked athletic and religious tendencies. He has a family, but he belongs to things, as they do. Last week's program was possibly a little more congested than usual—possibly not. There was a business meeting of the officers of his church on Sunday at nine, so that he had to leave the house shortly after breakfast.

Church services are at eleven and he does not like to be absent. He was invited out to dinner at one, there was a tea at the house of one of his acquaintances at four, and he was due to make a short speech at a fraternal meeting at six. The day was pretty well taken up by the time he arrived home, and he had seen very little of his family. The medical society meets on Monday, the Rotary club on Tuesday, the City Commercial club on Wednesday, and so on throughout the week. Noon or night he is almost never at home.

These facts affect his family's happiness and comfort very little, however. His wife's time is almost equally taken up with her own "organization." She has her bridge club, and the Ladies' Missionary society, an art club and a reading circle, and at least two afternoons are given up to golf. One must be in good physical condition if one is to keep up the pace at which we go these days. Mrs. Mason has not very much time at home either. Nor have her children. They are off at school most of the day, and for the evenings they have their social organizations, their dancing clubs, their scout activities and something or other to take them away from home the greater part of the time.

It is so generally. We belong to so many things, we are so obsessed with social and professional and religious and political and other activities that we have little time to spend at home. We must be learning a tremendous amount, or doing a great deal of good,

A Relief

The story is told about a government survey that was made to determine whether a woman's farm lay in New York state or just across the border in Canada. It was not a question of whether the farm should be allocated dry or superintended wet. The two governments wanted to determine which should get the woman's taxes.

The surveyors concluded that the farm was on United States territory. "I'm so glad," said the owner. "I've always been told that the winters in Canada are terrible."

Framing Arguments

The polite New York cousin of the street corner idler who encourages a good fight is a young chap of my acquaintance. He's fairly wealthy. In the social register and all that, and he loves to hear an argument. So, just for the fun of it, he spends his spare time in arranging debates between champions of causes. If a man attains some prominence in the press for his stand against prohibition, this young acquaintance of mine buzzes through town looking for some one equally prominent who has opposing views. When he finds the man he is looking for, he signs up both parties for a public debate, hires a large hall, inserts provocative advertisements in the newspapers, and makes quite a lot of money.

Pigmy Amid Giants

Cass Gilbert, the man who conceived the Woolworth building, is designing a pigmy building of four stories that will be built within a block of his world-famous tower. It is to be the home of the New York County Lawyers' association, and will be built just west of Broadway on Vesey street. It will be 56 feet tall, just this side of nothing to the Woolworth tower's 706 feet.

Speaking of buildings, I am told that the life expectancy of homes is much greater than that of skyscrapers, despite the use of imperishable steel in the latter. The trouble is, apparently, that office buildings, theaters, etc., must be up-to-the-minute, so they become obsolete very quickly. Homes may easily be remodeled to accommodate the latest gadgets, so they are torn down much less frequently.

Change in Measurement

A lineal foot has not always been 12 inches in length. It originally meant the length of the human foot. The standard, however, has varied in different countries. England and America long ago adopted the 12-inch foot. This length was first established in England under Henry I. His arm was declared the standard yard and the foot was then made one-third of a yard.

an I. O. U. for $200 to a fairly wealthy man. Subsequently the holder of the note said to the press agent: "I don't need the money, so if you like, you can pay me back by giving me theater tickets."

Consequently, the press agent was at the beck and call of his creditor until just a few days ago. The man would telephone the unfortunate craps shooter and demand tickets to the latest success. He was given in the neighborhood of $400 worth of tickets.

The other day he visited the press agent's office, and asked for a pair of socks to the latest hit. The press agent figured that he had more than paid his debt, so he said:

"I can't get them."

"All right," said his so-called friend, "I hold your I. O. U. and I'm going to sue you for $200."

If he sues, he'll collect, for the press agent is afraid to testify concerning the manner in which he really paid off the debt.

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

POULTRY

SMALL EGGS ARE DIFFICULT SALE

Best Plan to Cull Hens Laying Undersized Product.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Poultry growers usually believe that any hen laying 250 eggs a year is a good one, and a record of 300 eggs in a year is unusual except in a relatively small number of highly bred flocks which are fed and cared for by skillful poultry specialists.

At the Beltsville experiment farm of the United States Department of Agriculture last year one hen made a record of 306 eggs laid in 365 days. But she went to the butcher. The poultry experts of the bureau of animal industry made no apology for what would seem a sacrifice to many. This hen laid eggs that were undersized, poorly shaped, and below standard weight. They would have culled her before the year ended but for the fact that her record was needed for comparison with her sisters in a study of inheritance.

Her eggs were numerous, but her 254 dozen eggs did not weigh more, or have more food value, than 18 to 20 dozen standard eggs. She did in fact lay a greater weight of eggs than the average of many high-producing flocks. But even so she was not considered a desirable breeder. The department's studies of inheritance show it is much more difficult to breed into a flock of chickens the factors responsible for size and quality of eggs than it is to breed merely for numerical production. In the interest of the industry, which should endeavor to meet the demand for quality products, the department has set a minimum standard for the hens it will use in breeding experiments. They must produce eggs weighing not less than two ounces each, or a pound and a half to the dozen. They recommend this standard to poultry growers.

Free Open Water for Poultry Pays Profit

Free open water, neither too warm nor too cold, certainly not in the form of ice or frozen milk, should be supplied. If plenty of skim milk or butter milk is available, they may often be used as the sole liquid, particularly in summer; they carry some 90 to 93 per cent of water.

The other nutrients accompanying the water in these milk by-products are of very high class from the feeding standpoint. As the common drinking vessel is apt to be a good medium for disease transference and stock contamination, all drinking vessels should be kept sanitary.

Number of Females to Male Quite Variable

The number of females to be mated with one male varies with the class of stock.

For the Asiatics it should be eight to ten.

For the American and English classes it should be ten to fifteen, and the Mediterraneans may be fifteen to twenty.

The hens to be mated should be kept away from other males for at least three weeks prior to the saving of the first eggs for hatching, and should have associated with the males it is desired to breed from, for at least ten days, while two weeks is better.

Selling Stock Source of Big Poultry Profit

While it has been proven that a poor-laying mongrel flock containing several types and colors may be made over into a high-producing flock of uniform color that is just as desirable from the market standpoint as pure-breds, within the space of three years, the fact should not be overlooked that a considerable source of profit may come from selling breeding stock.

This can only be done satisfactorily where one keeps pure-bred stock.

It costs no more to house and feed a pure-bred flock than it does a bunch of mongrels or grades.

Shell Materials

The average hen eats three cents worth of oyster shell a year, and when it is available she will lay about 30 more eggs a year than though it is not provided. The hen needs calcium carbonate for the egg shells. It is difficult for her to secure an ample supply of this from water and feeds alone. Poultrymen long ago learned that oyster shell was about 99 per cent pure calcium carbonate and when crushed was readily available for the hens.

Save Manure

Poultry manure ferments very quickly, losing, if left exposed, a large proportion of its nitrogen as ammonia. This fact emphasizes the desirability of systematically and frequently cleaning off the boards beneath the roosts—a plan that also conduces to the general good health and thrift of the fowl. In summer the manure previously mixed with loam to destroy stickiness and facilitate distribution, may be applied directly to the land.

Adequate Rations

Five outstanding factors that must be kept in mind in building the adequate ration for laying hens are:

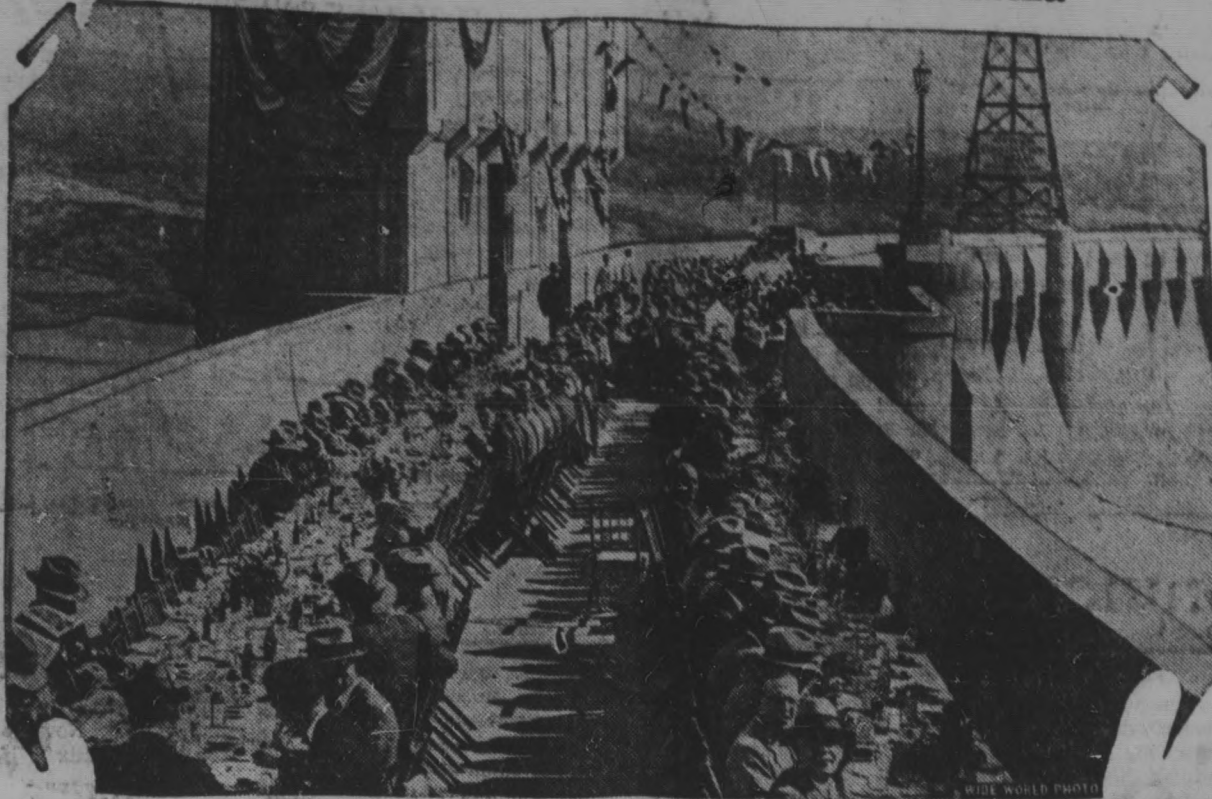

First, a sufficiency of liquid, and that, fundamentally speaking, means ample water.

Second, enough of the right kind of proteins, properly balanced.

Third, plenty of energy units, supplied particularly by the farm grains and other concentrated feeds.

Fourth, a satisfactory allowance of the vitamins needed.

Night Life Gets You if You Don't Watch Out!

War Vet almost takes count, but pals help.

HOW would you like it if every two weeks you had to give up your good night's sleep, and work all night instead? This is what happened to W. H. Huggins of 90 Savannah Street, Rochester, New York. When he came back from the War, he took a night "shift" job.

"It certainly shot me all to pieces," said Mr. Huggins. "I was licked before I started. My pals noticed that the night shift got me, so during a 'lunch' period in the middle of one night one of them said to me, 'Hug, I bet I know what's the matter with you. This irregular life gets us all unless we watch out. Why don't you try Nujol? Most of the boys are onto this little health trick. Try it!'

"Well, that very night on the way home I got a bottle and within a week I felt like a different person. I wouldn't know myself. You can lick any job, even a night one, if you get the poisons out of your system regularly. Nujol sure did it for me!"

And This Fox Movietone Production Has Been Hailed As "The Picture With 1,000 Thrills"

The voice of Janet Gaynor will be heard from the screen for the first time Sunday and Monday, when her initial talking picture, "4 Devils," opens at the Sequoia Theatre.

It may be truthfully said of this universally admired screen favorite that probably no other player has aroused greater public interest in the result of the change from pantomime to dialog. And "The Dream Girl," as she has sometimes been called, is said to exceed even the fondest expectations of the fans in the success of her audible performance.

Before starting on the talking sequence of the film which tells of the member of the quartet of aerial artists in a French hippodrome who is thrown into torment by the machinations of a beautiful love thief (Mary Duncan), Miss Gaynor quietly studied voice culture at the Fox Studios.

Further indication of her ability as an articulate player is the fact that she has been cast as the lead in the original musical comedy, "Sunny Side Up," which is to have De-Syva Brown and Henderson book lyrics and music.

Besides Janet Gaynor, Miss Duncan, Charles Morton, Nancy Drexel, Bary Norton and Farrel Macdonald are heard in this F. W. Murnau picture. The dialog was staged by A. H. Van Buren, with A. F. Erickson.

E. L. Taylor has disposed of a lot on Arguello street to C. L. Gould.
A. Lowenstein and family have moved into their new residence on Seventh street.

Miss S. Fry, who is well known here, left for the east last month, and will spend the winter in her old home in Texas.

Tom Stafford has been employed by E. M. Heise this week in place of Tom Rockwell, who has been laid up with the grip.

John Poole, Jr., has had a large wagon shed built to accommodate his rapidly increasing supply of drays and wagons.

Harold Heiner, Roy Curran, Chas. Curran, Hugh Burns, Stanley Rice and a number of other young men of Redwood are considering the matter of organizing an athletic club here. Every encouragement should be given to the young men, as a well equipped gymnasium such as they propose to fit up would be a benefit to the town.

Carl Muller, Carl Beeger, George Christ, J. Douglass and Henry Beeger went out to the Morgan oyster beds last Sunday in the Sloop Pet. In the afternoon James Cronk and Dr. Steinman went out in the launch "Wave" to tow them in. The Wave took a wrong course on approaching the oyster beds and got stuck on a bank of mud. She was towed off soon after, and started for Redwood with the Pet safely in tow. All went well until Redwood creek was entered, when both launch and tow got stuck on the mud and stayed stuck all night. Some of the party took a small boat and rowed home, arriving about 2:30 a. m.

that speaks volumes

George Bancroft, the star of many Paramount successes including "Underworld," "Wolf of Wall Street," known for his realistic and he-man characterizations, comes to the Sequoia Theatre Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for three big days. A star with exceptional pantomime as well as speaking ability.

Esther Ralston, one of the beautiful women of the screen, well known to the screen for a number of years. Some of her successes with Paramount are "Peter Pan," "A Kiss for Cinderella," "Old Ironsides," "Children of Divorce," "The Quarterback," "Love and Learn," "Half A Bride," "Sawdust Paradise" and "The Case of Lena Smith."

Warner Oland is one of the screen's best known bad men. He has long been one of pantomime's leading villains. Some of his Paramount pictures have been "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," "The Studio Murder Mystery" and "Chinatown Nights."

Raymon Hatton since his comedy successes, co-starred with Wallace Beery, has appeared in character roles in a number of Paramount Pictures.

Dorothy Reiver is a famous stage dancer who has recently made her picture debut, her last picture being "The Dance of Life."

Morgan Farley played Rex Greene in "The Greene Murder Case," so well that he was signed by Paramount. This is his second picture.

O. P. Heggie is another strong character name. "The Letter," "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu" and other roles are fast making him as well known on the screen as on the stage.

Charles Sellon is a new Paramount contract player. Remember him as the crook in Richard Dix's "Easy Come, Easy Go."

E. H. Calvert is always good as District Attorney Markham in the S. S. Van Dyne stories or in other roles.

John Cromwell, the director, is himself extraordinarily able actor. For years a Broadway stage star, he was in "The Dummy." He plays small parts in each picture he directs. He was co-director of "Close Harmony" and "The Dance of Life."

Robert N. Lee, the author, also wrote the screen play, "Underworld."
